

Wacky, Wild Weather Forecast

With a partner, fill in the missing words using the parts of speech under each line. Have your partner read this version of a weather forecast.

Good _____! Welcome to _____ Time of day radio station for an update on our _____ weather. I'm adjective

_____, your local _____ with the latest name career forecast. We all know that _____ are a more animal (plural)

accurate sign of predicting weather than _____.
Friend's name

Today, _____ clouds will move in, with _____ Adjective adjective _____ following close behind. A _____ Noun (plural) noun is on the move today. This will cause a(n) _____ adjective

front. As much as _____ inches of rainfall will hit number

_____. Watch out for _____ winds City adjective and falling _____. Temperatures will hold thing (plural) steady around _____ degrees. Tonight the skies will

number

_____ clear and we will see rainbows shaped like Adverb (word ending in ly)

_____. Tomorrow will start out _____, thing (plural) verb ending in ing but quickly change by noon. That's all for now.